Exciting News: Bad Boys Ride or Die Hits Theaters in 2024!

Sony's latest installment in the "Bad Boys" franchise, titled "Bad Boys: Ride or Die," got off to an impressive start, earning $56 million in its domestic debut across 3,885 theaters. The film also made a splash at the international box office, raking in $48.6 million, bringing its total worldwide earnings to a whopping $104.6 million.

What makes this release particularly noteworthy is that it marks Will Smith's return to the big screen after his incident at the 2022 Oscars, where he got into a tussle with Chris Rock on stage. Despite that controversy, it seems that audiences haven't lost their love for Smith, especially with him reprising his role in a beloved and well-received franchise.

While "Bad Boys 4" may not have broken any franchise records (that honor still goes to "Bad Boys for Life" with its $62 million opening), it does provide some much-needed encouragement for theater owners. Unfortunately, the year-to-date deficit has worsened, with ticket sales now lagging 26% behind 2023, according to Comscore. May and June have been disappointingly slow months, with underperforming blockbusters like Universal's action comedy "The Fall Guy" and Warner Bros.' sci-fi prequel "Furiosa: A Mad Max Saga."

In light of this, both Hollywood and exhibitors are banking on "Bad Boys" to continue its momentum and help revitalize moviegoing throughout the remainder of June and into August. With exciting releases like Pixar's "Inside Out 2" hitting theaters on June 14th, followed by "A Quiet Place: Day One" on June 28th, there's hope for a much-needed boost in the industry.

So, let's buckle up and get ready for more action-packed fun with "Bad Boys: Ride or Die" and keep our fingers crossed for a successful and thrilling summer at the movies! ★ 🎬 A F A F A F
